Biography

I am a full-time Lecturer in Psychology at Bahria University, Islamabad and the youngest permanent lecturer at the university, holding the highest number of first-author international publications and citations among MS scholars at Bahria. I have authored and co-authored 13 research articles, including 9 as first author. My publications include four Scopus-indexed (Q1–Q2) papers, three of which are first-authored, with over 250 citations. My research focuses on AI in education, student behavior, social media and psychological outcomes, and multicultural perspectives. My academic journey has been enriched through international learning and research experiences, including a fully funded MS in Clinical Psychology in Indonesia, academic visits to Russia (twice) and Singapore, and participation in a student mobility program in Malaysia. Open to research collaborations.
